Today in Washington we change Presidents. A new emperor takes charge of the national train which is going we don't exactly know whether, but in the right direction, we hope.

In London they are winding up a great war in the good old-fashioned, barbarous way, the victors forgetting their own defeat, scheming to take all they possibly can from the vanquished, and planting seeds of the next war.

In this country, according to Mr. R. C. Forbes, who writes ably on financial topics, capital is not prepared and doesn't wish to see business start up energetically "because labor has not been fully liquidated," which means because wages have not been pushed down far enough.

Of great value to the human race, something of which few have heard, is the work nearing completion at the Museum of Natural History in the city of New York.

In "The Hall of the Age of Man," under the direction of Henry Fairfield Osborn, there will be presented a picture of the life of man from his beginning on this earth, about five hundred thousand years ago, until today. If "to know thyself" is the first wisdom, this "Hall of the Age of Man" will do more for education, through the eye, than could be done in years of reading and thinking.

There man will see himself as the tribal ape-man, low forehead, big jaw, then as the Neanderthal man, brutish, but rising; next as the Cro-Magnon, infinitely more highly developed man, and so on all through the stages of primitive and later development.

Studying men as they have passed upward from cave life and cannibalism to what we call civilization, seeing that only twelve thousand years separate this day from the stag hunters of the late Stone Age, we shall understand more easily the ending of the war in 1921 with the victors treating the conquered as slaves.

INDUSTRIALLY. They used to make them their slaves physically or sell them. There is more dignity and respectability in a Cro-Magnon slaughtering his inferior dog, breaking open the thigh-bone to get the marrow, without hypocrisy, than in modern European fighting just here much they can get by enslaving a people for forty years.

The interesting announcement of this day is that Mr. Wilson, going back thirty-five years, to 1886, when he first became a professor, intends to start a law office with Blairbridge Colby, secretary of State, as his partner.

Mr. Wilson will have in Mr. Colby a first-class partner, a fighting lawyer, able, thoroughly equipped. "Capitalizing your reputation" is the modern idea.

Every affectionate father should make his son study law and gain admittance to the bar. Then, if he becomes distinguished in other directions, the law makes it possible for him respectfully to accept payment from anybody who may feel gratified.

A lawyer retiring from public service can capitalize his reputation over night. A doctor, scientist or more professor not admitted to the bar, cannot.

Lord Haldane, an Englishman, points out that to crowd down wages, discourage men, take away hope, instead of keeping the gain that has been made, means ruin to the nation in future.

Haldane is right. To cut down wages as a working policy is to keep down prosperity. Haldane says truly, "It prepares the way for endless strikes, for deliberate under-production for every trade-hungry manœuvre of which the workers are capable."

Organized capital has still to learn what it might easily learn by taking a trip to China, that the property of the state depends on the prosperity of the unfortunates at the bottom. You can only get a part of what you let your workers have. A nation's prosperity depends on what 50 per cent. of the population can spend.

The Federation of Labor is making up its mind about continuing international cooperation with European labor. Certain American labor elements feel that there is too much Bolshevism for health in Europe, too much radicalism, and that American labor would better withdraw from all connection with European organized labor.

That news will not annoy employers trying to establish the "open shop." A "barnit" stung out of labor of anything else is easily managed. The Koreans learned that.

An interesting question is raised by R. C. Forbes, who tells you that Italian laborers have refused to make army motor trucks and other war materials, because they don't approve of war. Mr. Forbes says employers in this country now ask themselves, "What is the world coming to?" Forbes suggests that if a capitalist has the right to decide how he will use his money, labor has a right to decide how it will use its skill.

HARDING DECLARES AGAINST FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS

COOLIDGE SWORN IN AS 2,000 LOOK ON

Harding, Coolidge and "First Ladies of the Land"

President Harding, Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Coolidge and Vice-President Coolidge photographed at the capital when the President and Mrs. Harding arrived from Marion for the inauguration and were met at the Union Station by Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge.

29TH PRESIDENT IS INAUGURATED

Washington, March 4.—Warren G. Harding of Ohio today became President of the United States, and Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts became Vice-President.

In an inaugural address breathing Americanism undefined, President Harding pledged himself to oppose foreign entanglements, to stand for economy in public expenditures and to work for industrial peace.

He paid a high compliment to the millions of newly enfranchised women and predicted that they would make fine citizens.

Statements standing out from the rest in the new chief magistrate's message to the assembled crowds and through them to the American people included the following:

"We seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. America can be a party to no permanent military alliance.

"But we are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, the conference, for counsel. We elect to participate in suggesting plans for mediation and establishing a world court for the disposition of such suitable questions as nations are agreed to submit thereon.

"Our supreme task is the reconstruction, readjustment and restoration will follow.

"We can reduce the abnormal expenditures, and we will. We can strike at war taxation, and we must. We must face the grim necessity with

Big Bay State Delegation and Members of Family Attend His Inaugural

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.
Washington, March 4.—Calvin Coolidge today raised his right hand, swore solemnly to be faithful to the best traditions of the nation and became Vice-President of the United States.

He is the twenty-ninth Vice-President, the fourth from Massachusetts and the first Bay State citizen to ascend this honorable post since 1872, when it was occupied by Henry Wilson, the Nation's cobbler.

Coolidge's record parallels in some interesting features that of his predecessor. Both had a humble start in life. Wilson was a country shoemaker, Coolidge a farm boy. Wilson is said to have more or less difficulty negotiating his passage to Washington for his own inauguration. Coolidge left a modest home for which he paid $25 a month, and is not believed to have it known that he wore his last new suit two years. Wilson's shabbiness was freedom.

President Harding's Inaugural Speech

Washington, March 4.—President Harding's inaugural speech today was as follows:

My Countrymen:
When one surveys the whole world about him after the great storm, noting the marks of destruction and yet rejoicing in the ruggedness of the things which withstand, he is an American he breathes the clarified atmosphere with a strange mingling of regret and new hope.

We have seen a world passion spend its fury; but we cannot place our republic unshaken and hold our civilization secure. Liberty—liberty within the law—and civilization are inseparable and though both were threatened we find them new secure, and there comes to Americans the profound assurance that our representative government is the highest expression and surest guaranty of both.

A full realization that the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson after a turbulent eight years' away.

Simply marked these occasions as planned. There was no pomp and little ceremony.

It was, as confessed Republican political observers remarked, typical "Harding weather." The day dawned clear and cold. The temperature was not far from freezing. A stiff breeze whipped the flags on Pennsylvania avenue, while a bright sun beat down on the assembled crowds.

SEVENTH OATH PRESIDENT. Ohioans and Bay State residents lined the crowds which began moving into the city. In the Ohio contingent was a feeling of natural elation. Ohio was back in "her place" in the sun. Warren G. Harding is

Champ Clark's Body in State at Capital

Washington, March 4.—Hanging like a pall over the joyous and merry-making of the inauguration today was the death of Champ Clark, the Democrat who almost was President. In Congress Hall Hotel, under the shadow of the Capitol, where he labored for more than a quarter of a century, and within a stone throw of where today's ceremonies took place, the Missouri body lay in state.

The casket and casket with which the crowd welcomed the new President drifted down through the building from the Capitol grounds and practically fell into the dim room.

WILSON AT NEW HOME HOLDS RECEPTION

Greatest Physical Effort of 18 Months Was Participation in Inauguration

By International News Service.

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson left the White House today after making the greatest physical effort of eighteen months.

The President made his first public appearance since he was stricken many months ago. Although he has appeared in a theatre box, today was the first time that he had gone before a great throng.

Standing on the rostrum of the United States Senate, in the presence of Mr. Harding, the nation's lawmakers, the ambassadors of foreign states, his own relatives and personal friends, Mr. Coolidge assumed the oath which is but a heart beat removed from the Presidency.

Harding's Comment on Election Result

The success of our popular government rests wholly upon the correct interpretation of the deliberate, intelligent, dependable popular will of America. It is a deliberate questioning of a suggested change of national policy where internationalism was to supersede nationalism, we turned to a referendum of the American people. There was ample discussion and there is a noble mandate in manifest uncontradictedness.—From President Harding's Inaugural.

157 TREMONT STREET.

PORTENTOUS QUIET SEEN AT CAPITAL BY HAPGOOD

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
Editorial Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, March 4.—Washington presents an appearance of singular quiet. Here and there are spots of color. Some of the streets are decorated. On a few of the streets there are enough flags and bunting to arrest the attention of the passer-by.

A Governor arrives from time to time with his suite and a small crowd meets him at the railway station. Trains arrive with people who come to see the ceremonies, and the hotels are full. The Willard Hotel is the centre of life, for there the new President is installed, and he is surrounded by a crowding and changing throng composed of Norman Hapgood's friends, office seekers, Senators, members of the new cabinet, members of the national committee and newspaper men. But these centres of color and excitement are almost lost in a surprising calm of the whole impression.

For this quietness Mr. Harding is responsible. It was his will and it represents the spirit in which the new President has entered the White House. He has cut out the pomp and ceremony customary on this occasion. The crowds are so much smaller than usual, that the decorations are so much less, that the whole temper of the city is one of a quietude instead of one of excitement.

Mr. Harding looked out from his new windows on Pennsylvania avenue and saw crowds of people waiting not at all in appearance from a crowd that fill that street every day when the government department gives up their thousands of men to women employees.

Office Seekers Recall Lincoln's Comment

As office seekers formed so large a part of the number pressing around the White House, Mr. Harding remarked that Abraham Lincoln, bareheaded, was making promotion or seeking one for themselves and their friends. He said that it was impossible to throw a stone into that avenue without hitting a brigadier-general. As far as I could tell, the ordinary men in the street like the ordinary men in the office, or the ordinary men in the club, was looking forward to a ceremony and to a great change in the life of the city with a gravity that really caused by widespread realization of the difficulties lying in the way of humanity.

While the new administration was being organized for its initiation, Mr. Wilson administration was being organized through the formal institution of its power. Resignations were being prepared, courteous conversations were being held, the last arrangements were being made. Yesterday the final load of cartridges went

KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a medical authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, stinging sensation, or setting up irritation at the neck of the bladder, which you seek relief two or three times during the night. The fever is in constant dread, the water you consume with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, it is difficulty in voiding it. Most folks call it, "gravel," but they can't control irritation. It is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful. This is really one of the most simple ailments to remove. Get about four ounces of "Salts" from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful to a glass of water before breakfast; continue this two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then function normally again. "Salts" is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes, lemon juice, combined with fine, pure, distilled water. It is used by thousands of folks who suffer from urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Just Salts to relieve kidney and bladder troubles. Effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effective, uric-acid-water drink, which quickly cures kidney and bladder trouble. Advertise.

Wilson begins a life of a simple citizen today.

The man who in 1917 and most of 1918, reached heights of power beyond those of any modern statesman takes into his new home many tokens of his career.

The man who thus passes into private life will do his work in the library room that has a singularly attractive outlook. Just beyond it is a sun parlor with a full view of the southern exposure. There comes a lawn already green.

From the middle of this lawn a flight of steps descends to a larger lawn on a lower level. In the middle of which stands a fountain. Across such a scene will Woodrow Wilson look as he thinks out and expresses those fundamental forces in politics which are to be the theme of his first literary work. To literary work, I imagine, he will give much more time than to the actual law practice of the new firm of Wilson & Cady.

The co-operating newspapers, Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, are conducting a Movie Title Test. This is the Sixth Day of the Test. Picture No. 6 will be found upon the Picture Page.

There will be 60 Test Pictures, one every day for 60 consecutive days. On week days the Test Picture will be printed in the Boston American; on Sundays, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Test Pictures will be shown WITHOUT TITLES.

HOW TO ENTER TEST.

If you desire to take part in this Test and, perhaps, earn one of the 219 cash awards, you must write a title for each of the sixty pictures.

Each and every picture illustrates the name of a motion picture play which has been produced in the United States. The Test Picture, remember, does not illustrate a scene in a motion picture play. It may be, and probably will be, miles away from anything like such a scene. But it does represent the TITLE of a play.

"Yes," you say, "but how am I going to be able to hit upon the title?"

AND THE ANSWER IS THAT YOU WILL FIND THE CORRECT TITLE IN A LIST OF TITLES PRINTED EVERY DAY WITH THE TEST PICTURE.

If you will turn now to the Picture Page you will find there, under the Test Picture, a number of titles of the Test and the everyday who would like to take part in it. If you have not now decided that you want to come in, but did it impossible to secure the first five pictures, you will be particularly pleased with Sunday's message.

And, for reasons far removed from this Test, there is going to be a demand for the Sunday Advertiser such as there has never been before.

To be sure, order your Boston Sunday Advertiser today and be happy.

If there is anything about the Test, its conduct, method or plan, that you wish to know and do not find in the Rules, the Test Editor will be glad to make it clear. Every participant should read the Rules. Since the class of the Player Test we have been asked a dozen questions which were answered by the second paragraph of the Rules of each test.

CHANGES IN TITLE LIST.

It is likely that the list of Titles which accompanies the drawings will be changed from week to week, but whenever you see a Title Test picture the official List of Titles will not be far away. In the List of Titles will be the very title you seek.

Now, a few answers to correspondents who did not ask to be answered by mail:

M. M. M. Esplanade Ave., Montreal—You probably found them the next day. If not, please write again.

A. O. Houghton, Chelsea—Sorry, but the rules forbid our substituting the name of Bonworth to Skinner. No alterations could be made once the Player Test pictures left your hands.

Eckey Langley, Boston—I hope nobody will be crazy enough to suppose that we want everything sent to us in leather-bound books. Where do you get that idea? The Springfield parcel appeared to be worthy of comment because it was one of two or three that came in that fashion out of 40,000. Check up.

Mrs. L. B. Boston—Sorry I ever said anything about clipping the old top-places with the picture. Don't worry!

Harvard, Boston—You are eligible and welcome.

HERE'S A JOCLER ONE.

Ima Himbo, Boston—Name and address must be written in every space provided for that purpose.

Having explained the Test thus briefly, the Title Test Editor has only one thing he desires to say, heart-to-heart fashion, to his readers. You cannot take part in the Test without all six of them. The only way to be SURE of having all the pictures is to place with your newspaper a standing order for the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Tell Mr. Newsdealer you must have both papers regularly for at least the duration of the Test.

MESSAGE ON SUNDAY.

It is particularly important that you have next Sunday's Advertiser, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the day after tomorrow. On Sunday the Test Editor will have a message for everybody who is taking part in the Test and the everyday who would like to take part in it. If you have not now decided that you want to come in, but did it impossible to secure the first five pictures, you will be particularly pleased with Sunday's message.

And, for reasons far removed from this Test, there is going to be a demand for the Sunday Advertiser such as there has never been before.

To be sure, order your Boston Sunday Advertiser today and be happy.

If there is anything about the Test, its conduct, method or plan, that you wish to know and do not find in the Rules, the Test Editor will be glad to make it clear. Every participant should read the Rules. Since the class of the Player Test we have been asked a dozen questions which were answered by the second paragraph of the Rules of each test.

CHANGES IN TITLE LIST.

It is likely that the list of Titles which accompanies the drawings will be changed from week to week, but whenever you see a Title Test picture the official List of Titles will not be far away. In the List of Titles will be the very title you seek.

Now, a few answers to correspondents who did not ask to be answered by mail:

M. M. M. Esplanade Ave., Montreal—You probably found them the next day. If not, please write again.

A. O. Houghton, Chelsea—Sorry, but the rules forbid our substituting the name of Bonworth to Skinner. No alterations could be made once the Player Test pictures left your hands.

Eckey Langley, Boston—I hope nobody will be crazy enough to suppose that we want everything sent to us in leather-bound books. Where do you get that idea? The Springfield parcel appeared to be worthy of comment because it was one of two or three that came in that fashion out of 40,000. Check up.

Mrs. L. B. Boston—Sorry I ever said anything about clipping the old top-places with the picture. Don't worry!

Harvard, Boston—You are eligible and welcome.

HERE'S A JOCLER ONE.

Ima Himbo, Boston—Name and address must be written in every space provided for that purpose.

Having explained the Test thus briefly, the Title Test Editor has only one thing he desires to say, heart-to-heart fashion, to his readers. You cannot take part in the Test without all six of them. The only way to be SURE of having all the pictures is to place with your newspaper a standing order for the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Tell Mr. Newsdealer you must have both papers regularly for at least the duration of the Test.

MESSAGE ON SUNDAY.

It is particularly important that you have next Sunday's Advertiser, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the day after tomorrow. On Sunday the Test Editor will have a message for everybody who is taking part in the Test and the everyday who would like to take part in it. If you have not now decided that you want to come in, but did it impossible to secure the first five pictures, you will be particularly pleased with Sunday's message.

FULLER SALARY GOING TO CLARITY

Lieutenant-Governor States He Will Decline $40,000 Due Him as Congressman

Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, in reply to an inquiry as to the report in a Boston morning paper that his four-figure salary as Congressman and allowance amounting to approximately $40,000 were to be given to charity, said that he had not accepted this salary last afternoon and had no intention of doing so.

Fuller said he had declined to accept the salary and allowance for secretary hire, clerk hire, mileage and allowance, attorney allowance or use of the ranking privilege, primarily because he desired to vote a protest against the abuse of these privileges by Congressmen, and also that he might be forced to resign the allowance for a secretary without actually employing one.

FRANKING ABUSE. The same practice obtains in regard to allowance for clerk hire also. Numerous members accept the attorney allowance, and then use the committee stationery which is free.

The abuse of the franking privilege in political and party campaigns, an "evil" against which he desired to vote his protest, also said that the abuse of the franking privilege had cost the country millions of dollars a year. Individual Congressmen have sent out political mail under "blank" inlets which cost the government in postage about $100,000 a year.

EXOROUS REPORT. The Lieutenant-Governor went on to say the report he had given any part of his salary or allowance is erroneous and is probably based on the fact that he has received vouchers, checks, etc., from time to time which would be paid by the government if tendered for payment. He will not be stated, indeed, these checks, vouchers, etc., except in the event they were to be given outright to some charity which he did not anticipate at this time.

The following tabulation indicates the salary and allowance aside from the franking privilege to which Congressmen are entitled over a two-term period, such as former Congressman Fuller has just completed: Salary (two terms), $36,000; secretary, $16,000; clerk, $16,000; mileage, $12,000; stationery, $800; total, $44,800.

TEN MEN SAVED OFF STRANDED SUBMARINE

23 Men Left on O-7, Aground Near New London; O-8 Is in Trouble Nearby

With ten men taken off one craft as lifeboats, and the other stubbornly refusing efforts to tow her off the rocks, the two United States submarines that were stranded on a voyage from this city in New London, Ct., were reported to be in precarious situations today.

The O-7, from which a part of the crew of 23 men were taken, was hooked up on Wednesday night, Fishers Island, about eight miles from New London, menaced by a heavy gale blown up by the freshening northwest wind.

The command cutter Annapolis attempted unsuccessfully to float her alongside, and the O-7, under the command of Lieutenant Philip R. Weaver, and the O-8, in command of Lieutenant Archie E. Gann, left Boston early yesterday after undergoing minor repairs at the Navy Yard. They started for the submarine base at New London, but became separated in a dense fog.

The O-7 lost her course entirely and was stranded on a shoal near Fishers Island, where she was never traversed by vessels of any considerable draft. Both submarines were traveling on the surface. After feeling his way through the shoals, the O-8 brought up on a submerged ledge, driving on his hand the new tests with the rock platform, which he had used to land.

The Annapolis at Woods Hole was notified by wireless and hurried to the scene, where an attempt was made to float the stranded craft, without success. Another attempt will be made.

Harding Is Coming to Plymouth August 1

Monday, August 1, will be the big day of the Pilgrim Tercentenary celebration at Plymouth, the coming of the Mayflower as on this day President Harding will be present, with many other notable Americans, according to an announcement made by William Carroll Hill, secretary of the Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission of Massachusetts.

President-elect Harding was invited to make August 1 the day of the official visit to the Pilgrim monument, and the celebration, most appropriately in the presidential yacht "Mayflower," and has given his assent to this plan personally to Louis B. Liggett, chairman of the commission.

At high tide tonight, officers and crew were left aboard, with the vessel standing by. The vessel was taking in water. In the meantime, ignorant of the plight of the ship, continued on its course with the O-7, only to bring up on a shoal near Fishers Island. He sent out a wireless call for help, and the command cutter Annapolis was ordered out of New York to his assistance, as were also a number of sailing ships from New London.

Captain Edward R. Lombard of the city's coast guard station immediately put out to the stranded craft, and reported her to be in a safe position.

After midnight, however, the wind began to get up, blowing with heavy surf and bearing to the safety of the men. Lieutenant Weaver had been told that he could hold out until assistance arrived at which time he would be taken to the stranded craft, and reported her to be in a safe position.

American Flees Five Dusky Wives in Africa

New York, March 4.—Having escaped in the middle of the night from his five obligatory "wives" in the forest fastness of Zululand, Farid Bey Derighan, subject of the Egyptian sultanate, has just arrived in this country.

He is a former citizen of the United States, whose life here was more ordinary than of Alfred James Doughton, Mr. Doughton, of Farid-Bey, as he has been accustomed to being called in Arabic, married to five women after a most thrilling and romantic career in the forest of Zululand. He lived somewhere in this city, he found, however, that his father had some months ago himself departed for South Africa to look up his long-lost son.

Farid-Bey did not find his father, but he did find a son, Mrs. Joseph Doughton, living here, and her family, and he related last night the extraordinary account of his adventures among the savages of the Dark Continent.

"You see," he said, "when I was in Zululand, I was working in the diamond mines. I had started to me a number of native servants, including young girls—all very dark."

"One of the tribal requirements, in order that a white man might live here, is that he take at least five of these girls as wives, otherwise serious difficulties and even death might ensue."

"I had no alternative but to accept my minimum quota of five. They brushed my hair, cooked my meals and looked after my household generally."

"Some months ago I decided the life was too long and, determined to return to the United States to look up my father. The problem of how to get away from my black ladies loomed up furiously before me. They had become very attached, and I feared for the worst if I left them. I planned to leave. I paid something like $25,000—little over a dollar for each wife."

"My wife was in the wilderness some distance from Pretoria. It consisted of one tiny room. Each wife had her own bunk and I had mine, and a corner was staked for the cows, chickens, ducks and other domestic animals."

HOUSE FAILS TO PASS TARIFF OVER VETO

Vote of 201 to 132 Not Sufficient to Override Wilson's Disapproval

Washington, March 4.—The Fordney tariff bill died early today when the House failed in an attempt to override President Wilson's veto of the measure.

The vote was 201 to 132 to override the veto, 132 to sustain the President.

This was thirty-three votes short of the required two-thirds to annul the measure over the President's disapproval.

In a 1,200-word message to the House the President declared that the measure would not furnish the relief sought, but would only deprive the farmers and raise rates among them. He also attacked the proposed legislation on economic grounds.

Black Domination Over White Men and Women

Copyright, 1921, by the Star Company

It should never be forgotten that the strongest protests against the conduct of the British and French governments since the war have been made by Britons and Frenchmen—to their own honor and to the shame of their governments.

For example, here are some extracts from a letter written to E. D. Morel, the English writer, by General C. B. Thomson, British military representative on the supreme war council at Versailles from May, 1918, until June, 1919.

I share in full your horror and disgust at the employment of French black troops in Germany. I can confirm what you say as to the sexual proclivities of these men to whom, in default of women of their own race, intercourse with European white women is a necessity which has to be met.

There is another side of this question, though not so physically revolting, is even more serious—these savages are being trained to the use of arms and taught to despise the European races at the same time. Their worst qualities are being stimulated and they will return to their native lands restless, disaffected and ripe for any mischief.

France is, in fact, militarizing West Africa. This suicidal policy is the work of a small clique of reactionaries and militarists who serve the interests of industrial magnates. Ever since the signing of the armistice both the French and British governments have submitted to the dictation of these men, and until they are reduced to impotence, no remedy will be found. The publicity you are giving to these atrocious happenings in Germany will, it is to be hoped, arouse the public to new realization of the iniquities sanctioned by the Peace Treaty, and also of the total incapacity of the men who made those treaties to deal with modern problems, either at home or abroad.

The Anglophiles and Francophiles here at home will hardly have the impudence to say that this distinguished British soldier is ignorant of the truth or that he is engaged in spreading pro-German propaganda. But if any Francophile apologist does suspect that General Thomson is indulging British prejudice against the French government, let him read what a French soldier and writer of renown has to say. The extracts which follow are from a public letter written to Mr. Morel by Henri Barbusse:

I am heartily with you in your protest against the use of black troops. The hordes who are today poured over German towns are precisely what they were yesterday—unhappy slaves, in whose primitive minds the scientific European has, for his own purposes, reshaped the facts and the idea of degradation, rape and murder. We know the methods used to bring them out of their own country. We know how they have been torn from their native life by armed raids and incendiary fires to be carried into captivity and thrust into barracks.

On the Riviera, where the rich enjoy all the subtleties of luxury and live princely lives, I have seen these unhappy blacks herded like animals in a pen. The arms of many of them were still marked with the wounds made by the ropes with which they had been tied to bring them from their country and to prevent them from running away, once they were landed in Europe. Many of them committed suicide to escape this wretchedness.

If the protest of this distinguished Frenchman of letters and brave soldier is not enough, here is an extract from a letter written by Jean Longuet, the celebrated French orator, economist and journalist:

I beg you to inform our British comrades that we are absolutely at one with them in their protest against the crime of employing black troops in the occupied German Rhine provinces. It is one of the most odious aspects of our contemporary militarism and imperialism. We entirely approve of your protest against the use of African or Asiatic troops for the occupation of European cities. Your action can in no way be considered anti-French. On the contrary the best way you can show that you remain attached to the noble traditions of the French Republic, Victor Hugo, Michelet and Jean Jaurès is to protest, as you are doing, against the outrage inflicted upon our country by our own government.

There are a number of persons here at home who share the creed that the French government can do no wrong. Mr. Simonds has written a whole "history" of the war based upon that remarkable theory. But the theory has no real foundation and is contradicted by every page of European history.

We Americans ought not to adopt the puerile and indefensible theory that any government is much superior in morality or deeds to the common run of governments. And it is not becoming to a true American to excuse or to defend or to do anything but abhor the use of nearly 1,000,000 black slaves, torn by violence from their African homes and taught to indulge upon white men and white women and white children, what Henri Barbusse forcibly describes as "the taste and the idea of degradation, rape and murder."

The French militants ought to be warned that American public opinion abhors negro occupation of white German provinces as much as do the distinguished English and French soldiers and writers quoted in this article. The thing is shameful, cowardly and unworthy of a civilized government.

Beautiful Cuba Has a Beautiful Scheme

The U. S. A. Will Pay the Beautiful Bill

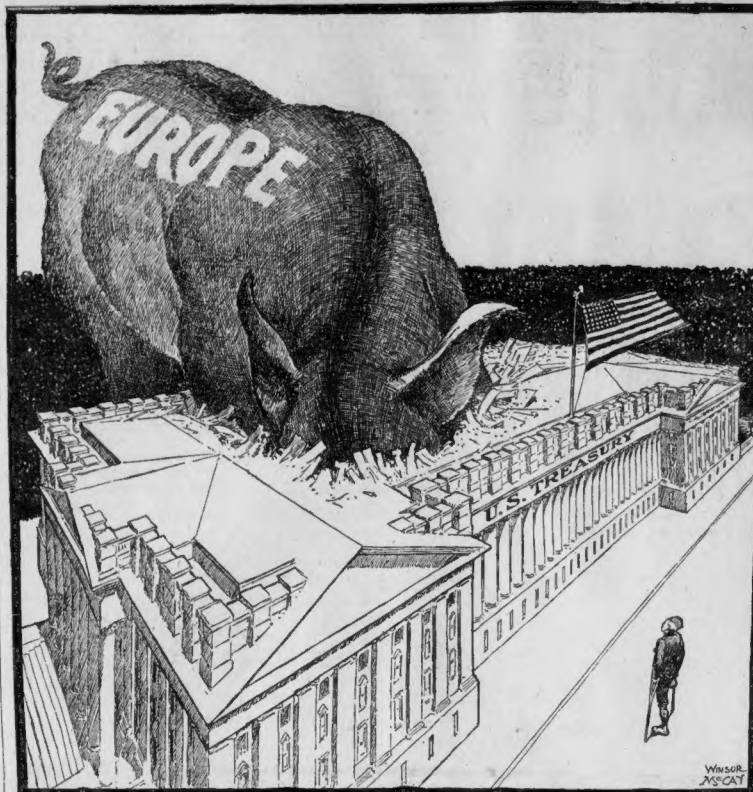

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

While we are trying, in a very feeble way, to discourage monopolies and profiteering in this country, the government of Cuba has carefully organized and perfected a sugar trust. The idea is to take $450,000,000 extra in profits on the next year's sugar bill in the United States.

An ironclad combination has been arranged to increase and keep up the price of sugar. Every cent in the pocket means $90,000,000 a year more for this country to pay. Mr. Harding and Mr. Daugherty, his Attorney-General, should have something to say about this particular Cuban enterprise.

More Truth Than Poetry

Moments of Dejection

By S. E. KISER

SAY that gladness is a duty, say that doubling is a sin; Say that if a man has courage and is patient he must win;

Tell the man whose face is gloomy that he ought to console to sigh; Say he owes it to his Maker still to keep his spirits high;

But it's hard to make men hopeful, hard to cheer them when they know That the dentist's waiting for them and it's up to them to go.

Tell the disappointed lover that the sun is shining yet, And that somewhere there's a maiden who will cause him to forget;

Tell the man whose wife has left him that she isn't worth a tear, That the scalcawag who lured her will be sorry in a year.

But it's hard to scatter sunshine and to banish discontent When a man is empty-handed and the landlord wants his rent.

SAY the effort that is worthy will be sure to bring rewards, Say the faithful will have glory o'er their faithless overlords;

Tell the world that there is reason to be putting fear away, Say that peace is coming surely—it's an easy thing to say;

But it's hard to be courageous, hard to give your fear a fess, When you've made a stupid blunder and are summoned by the boss.

YAP, YAP, YAP

THE island that sounds like the canine chorus in moon minor again rushes out of the rear paw into the charmed circle of notoriety.

THE Japs have seized Yap by the ears right under the chin of Uncle Sam. It is only six thousand three-hundred miles from the U. S. Which means an insult right under the diplomatic nose.

THERE is no booze on Yap Island. So it can't be a very good place, even at its worst. Uncle Sam wants Yap as an adding station for his transpacific cable toils.

WE are also actuated by a desire to bring the Yellow Peril nearer. The population is only 5,000. A raid for Cabinet officers would exhaust the island in two weeks.

THE men are the handsomest bow-legged citizens in the world. The women are cross-eyed and beautiful. They are also feverishly stylish, wearing almost enough clothes to be noticed on Fifth avenue.

YAP is located 3,400 miles from the ukulele belt, and only 1,400 from the Mikado's kimono factory. A war on Yap wouldn't annoy the neighbors' children. The nearest land is Guam, 200 miles away as the Old Crow used to flap. More Cook's tourists have been cooked on Guam than there are strands in a Balinese's whiskers.

THE only trouble with adopting Yap is that the entire 8,000 sole surviving citizens would spend the next century in Washington arguing for home rule. Seems better to let the Yap keep the Yap, as Americans the island would ruin the sovereign postcard industry.

THERE is no frog in the world who can rule two ponds. We had better stick to the mandatory over Armenia, feeding the Chinese, buttering into Persian affairs and other domestic problems.

CHEER BOYS PICK ONLY "LIVE" ONES

By Damon Runyon

THE Three Cheers Boys are those persons who are always ready to respond to the suggestion of one of their number:

"Let us give three cheers for So-and-so or Such-and-such!" They give them with a right good will—three rowing cheers, and maybe a "tiger" tacked to the end.

Perhaps you have had some of them around you in your time. Surely you have if you ever met with any degree of success in the world. The Three Cheers Boys trail with the successful. I have yet to hear them offering cheers for the unsuccessful.

Quiet Cheering In the cafes at the luncheon hour you can see the Three Cheers Boys grouped about the various objects of their admiration—successful producers, successful actors, successful playwrights—giving their three cheers in pantomime.

The management would not stir the tumult of an actual vocal outburst, of course, but the Three Cheers Boys have a system of cheering without lifting their voices above a conversational tone.

Many men are often misled by the Three Cheers Boys. Many men mistake the triple whoop for an honest demonstration and affection, whereas it is simply a matter of custom on the part of the cheerers.

Soldiers know the Three Cheers Boys well. They stand on the side walks when the troops go marching off to war, cheering the marchers, cheering the flag, cheering the war. They are on the sidewalks again when the boys come back giving their three cheers, but that's all they do give.

Quickly Vanished I saw a ragged newsboy risk his life stopping a runaway horse today, saving a girl in a rickety peddler's wagon. The boy was badly hurt. A large crowd immediately gathered, and while the boy was stretched out on the ground one of the every handy Three Cheers Boys took off his hat, waved it around, and shouted:

"Let's give three cheers for the kid!"

The cheers were given all right, shouting the echoes, and then a kindly looking old man stepped forward and said:

"Gentlemen, let us also take up a little collection for this poor lad. In two minutes the crowd had vaporized, the leader of the Three Cheers Boys being the first to vanish.

To the Editor

Direct Action

Editor Boston American: The following notice, published in a daily paper of one of the enterprising and rapidly-growing cities of Florida, Fort Myers, brings forward a condition that may well be given much thought when taking into consideration the building situation in Boston today, and particularly some of the demands being made by some of the principals involved:

"I, W. 2281, Carpenter and Joiner of Fort Myers, Fla., have received their wage scale from 30 cents per hour to 75 cents per hour from March 1. In making this cut in wages we wish to be fair with the building public, and we think the same percentage should be made by doctors, druggists, hardware stores and rents. Press Committee, L. W. 2281, Fort Myers, Florida.

Believing as we do that the only solution to the housing problem of this city today is more buildings, it would seem that a little more direct action such as the above, would go far toward solving the problem.

W. J. Kearney.

Must Have Boston American Editor Boston American:

Please accept my most cordial thanks for your editorial and cartoon in the Boston American Thursday, February 24. I could not sleep nights if I were deprived of your paper. T. H. CARLOW, Brockton.

FILIPINO'S BEST GIFT FROM U. S.

By Edith Davids

THE supreme gift of the United States to the Philippines is indicated by "beautiful white edifices facing the palms of Plaza McKinley in Manila's Walled City"—the Assembly Building, first parliament of the people for self-government ever organized in Asia.

Before the sovereignty of these islands was transferred from Spain to the United States, the Philippines were ignored as far as the government of their own country was concerned. The Manila people for nearly four hundred years had been under the domination of a medieval European monarchy, over eight thousand miles distant.

One of the most inspiring chapters in our national history is our effort to teach the Philippines, what free institutions mean.

All Filipinos

Two Governors of provinces are Filipinos; of the eight members of the Governor-General's Council of State, only one is an American; in the judiciary there are nineteen natives out of twenty-six judges of First Instance, and in the Supreme court four Filipinos to five Americans—the Chief Justice has always been a native.

The twenty-four Senators and ninety Representatives are all Filipinos. Thus have the Americans fulfilled the promise to the Filipino people implied in President McKinley's noble charge to the Philippines Commission that their work was "not to subjugate, but to emancipate."

From the deck of the inter-island steamer bound for Cebu, as the day alongs the coast in the narrow Pasig River, my gaze went to the citadel of Salcedo and Andra. An eminent American stood beside me at the rail. Looking toward the Philippine Assembly Building, I spoke enthusiastically of the Filipinos' progress in self-government. My countryman drew attention to a passage in the 1920 Yearbook of the Philippines Chamber of Commerce:

"The tendency (in the Philippines) as in other Oriental countries, is essentially for power to gravitate away from the people." "A Premier de France, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, is actually in power."

Actually in Power

Sergio Osmeña, a Chinese mestizo, is "actually in power." Speaker of the House of Representatives, he is boss of the Nationalist party's political machine. The party rules from its headquarters in the Nationalist Club, of which Osmeña is president. A silent, inscrutable Oriental, of Chinese blood himself, he is married to the daughter of a Chinaman.

Osmeña exerts a strong influence over Governor Harrison. The first Governor-General of the Philippines, who has entered upon his duties without previous experience in the Philippines, Governor Harrison chose to consult constantly the mestizo politician. He turned from the counsel of the Americans who had officially grown up with the service from the beginning and made it worthy of the United States.

Stars and Stripes

A snake may shed its skin, but never its fangs.

A hoaster is a fellow whose memory has devoured his modesty.

A dog may either lick the hand or bite the heel; a servile flatterer does both.

The man who is lifted to his own faults and deaf to the praise of others is never dumb in regard to his own virtues.

Brave men face trouble; cowards surrender to pleasure.

Imitating genius is like borrowing fire; soon it is scolding hot ashes.

IS YOUR DAUGHTER PLANNING WORK IN BOSTON?

What fates befall the hundreds of New England girls who seek employment in Boston? How many "licks" have they suffered? Saddest of all, how many vanish altogether? The questions are answered in the next Sunday Advertiser.
